Registration and grading policies are listed on page 292 of the catalog, and maximum enrollment units are listed on page 293. For the School of Undergraduate Studies, the maximum listed was 16 units. The correct number is 18 units, as listed below:

Enrollment Maximums

Students may enroll up to a certain maximum number of units per semester. The amount depends on the school. For the School of Undergraduate Studies (SUS) it's 18 units; for the American College of Traditional Chinese Medicine (ACTCM), 24 units; for the School of Professional Psychology and Health (SPPH) and the School of Consciousness and Transformation (SCT), 13 units in Fall and Spring, and 10 in Summer.

Appeals to exceed these maximums are to be directed to academic advisors. SCT students may also appeal to their program chairs. International students also need written approval from the international student advisor. These are schoolwide semester maximums. Individual programs may have maximums lower than those. Noncompliance may result in being administratively withdrawn from the semester. Units taken in audit status are not included in these limits.
